The Duchess of Gordon.

The greatest family in the north of Scotland, 70 years ago, was the ducal family of Gordon. Early in life Alexander, the fourth Duke, married Jane Maxwell, "the flower of Galloway," and a handsome couple had rarely been seen. The Duke was in his 24th year; the bride in her 21st. Reynolds, in a fine portrait that still graces Gordon Castle, has preserved some memorial of the youthful beauty of the Duchess in which intelligence was mingled with sensibility and tenderness. A lovelier profile was never drawn; the woman of whom so many tales are related, representing her as scheming, worldly, and gross, might have sat for a Saint Cecilia or a Theresa. And there were passages in the life of the Duchess Jane that wore the hues of poetry and romance. As a girl she was strongly attached to a young officer, who reciprocated her passion. The soldier, however, was ordered abroad with his regiment, and shortly afterwards was reported dead. This was the first great calamity that Jane Maxwell had experienced; and after the first burst of grief had spent itself, she sank into a state of listlessness and apathy that seemed immovable. But the Duke of Gordon appeared as a suitor, and partly from family pressure, partly from indifference, Jane accepted his hand. On their marriage tour the young pair visited Autoun House, in Berwickshire, and there the Duchess received a letter, addressed to her in her maiden name, and written in the well known hand of her early lover. He was, he said, on his way home to complete their happiness by marriage. The wretched bride fled from the house, and, according to the local tradition, was found, after long search, stretched by the side of a burn, nearly crazed. When she had recovered from this terrible blow and re-entered society, Jane presented an entirely new phase of character. She plunged into all sorts of gaiety and excitement; she became famous for her wild frolics, and for her vanity and ardor as a leader of fashion. She shone at the balls and musical suppers of Edinburgh, leading the poet Burns one season in her train. In London her routs and assemblies were the most brilliant of the capital, attracting wits, orators and statesmen. When her family grew up, she found fresh occupation and interest in chaperoning her daughters, and stimulating the ambition of her favorite son, the Marquis of Huntley. It was chiefly through her exertions that her son was able to raise a regiment for general service. In order that the ranks of the 92d, or Gordon Highlanders, might be filled up and Huntley obtain his command, she has been known to recruit in kilt and hose, bonnet and feathers, dancing with and kissing parties of half mad mountaineers! No Cameron or Macpherson could resist this--the recruiting was eminently successful.

Having married all her daughters, the gay Duchess said she would set about marrying herself again to her old Duke! She was, however, too late. It was no use looking to the east in the evening still to find the sun there. The Duke's affections had strayed towards a village damsel, a certain Jane Christie, destined afterwards to become Duchess of Gordon. In the commencement of this unfortunate and reprehensible connection there was also a touch of something like "sensational romance." Jane Christie was on the eve of marriage--she was actually a bride when the Duke of Gordon interposed, the intended marriage was broken off, and Jane became inseparably united to her lordly admirer of the castle. She was a fine-looking woman, as such hapless victims are--above the middle size, always plainly though richly dressed, without feather, flower, or jewel; she had sense and tact, was kind hearted, and beloved by the poor all over the ducal domains. During this time the veritable and great Duchess resided chiefly in the south, and led a wandering, scattered, homeless life. She died in London, and the event is thus announced by Lady Keith: "So the great leader of fashion is gone at last--the Duchess of Gordon! Her last party, poor woman, came to the Pulteney Hotel to see her coffin! She lay in state three days, in crimson velvet, and she died more satisfactorily than one could have expected. She had an old Scots Presbyterian clergyman to attend her, who spoke very freely to her, I heard, and she took it very well. She received the sacrament a few hours before her death."

When a person receives a newspaper, or other printed matter, through the mail, upon which his name is written, he cannot remit it to another party, excepting at letter postage, without effectually removing the first address--whether written or printed--upon the inside or upon the wrapper.

A soldier in one of the Kentucky camps says the motto with them is, "United we sleep, divided we freeze."

MANUFACTURE OF COAL OIL.--The manufacture of oil from coal, by distillation, has been extinguished in the United States by the large supplies of cheap petroleum. But we notice by our foreign exchanges that coal oil is manufactured upon an extensive scale in Scotland, and the business there is upon the increase, competing with imported petroleum. If our oil well were to cease flowing, the manufacture of coal oil would be resumed, of course; because there are extensive beds of cannel coal in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky, and Virginia, from illimitable quantities of this oil could be made. There are several points of difference between the rock oil and the coal oil. From the coal, pure benzene is obtained, and from this product the beautiful aniline red, crimson, and purple colors so much admired are manufactured. Such products have not been obtained from petroleum, for if pure benzene exists in the natural oil, the quantity is so limited that it has not been appreciated. The benzene of petroleum is a different substance from the benzene of distilled coal. Another product of distilled coal, differing from that of petroleum, is its heavy oil that is used for lubrication in Europe. Oils of different specific gravities are derived from petroleum, but the heaviest is said to be inferior to that obtained from coal for lubricating machinery. A great improvement in the distillation of coal has lately been effected in Scotland. It consists in admitting superheated steam of a very high temperature into the vertical retorts while distillation is going on. The product is nearly doubled, the oil clarified, the disagreeable odor modified to a certain extent, and the retort kept clean.

POLES ON THEIR WAY TO SIBERIA.--The following letter, sent by a Polish exile, dated from Moscow, gives a sad insight into the cruelties to which the prisoners are subjected: "I write you a few lines from Moscow. Neither our prayers, nor our tears, nor our sickness have had any effect. We convicts are not allowed to be ill, and we must all of us proceed on the road marked out for us. Several women and children at the breast, decrepit old men, and even madmen, form part of our convoy. On the passage from St. Petersburg to Moscow a woman died in the railway carriage; her body was thrown out of the window, and the train proceeded. My traveling companion has now preceded to Nishni-Novgorod with his companions in misfortune. We go on to-morrow. Communicate this to my friends, and receive the farewell of a poor galienne."

THE ALBANY correspondent of the Syracuse Courier gives this little instructive incident:

"The greatest rebuke I ever heard given for profane swearing was administered to a New Yorker by a little candy boy, at the Delavan House, yesterday. As several of the Syracuseans were in conversation at the Delavan, an Albany boy, about seven years of age, came up to vend his candy. His intelligence and remarkable precociousness of manner attracted our attention, when a prominent New Yorker came up and said:

"Bub (with an oath), if you come home with me I'll educate you."

The child looked up in the New Yorker's face with an extreme contempt, and replied:

"Sir, I would not go or live with any gentleman who uses profane language." The cutting rebuke drove the New Yorker from the room with a crimson face.

WINGS OF INSECTS.--The buzzing and humming sounds produced by winged insects are not, as might be supposed, vocal sounds. They result from sonorous undulations imparted to the air by the flapping of their wings. This may be rendered evident by observing that the noise always ceases when the insect alights on any object. The sirens have been ingeniously applied for the purpose of ascertaining the rate at which the wings of such creatures flap. The instrument being brought into unison with the sound produced by the insect, indicates, as in the case of any other musical sound, the rate of vibration. In this way it has been ascertained that the wings of a gnat flap at the rate of 15,000 times per second. The pitch of the note produced by this insect, in the act of flying is, therefore, more than two octaves above the highest note of a seven-octave piano.

At Dover, England, the other day, the singular circumstance occurred of a Criminal Court sitting in a resort and garrison town, with nobody to be tried. The Judge said he had sat on the bench for thirty five years, and such a thing had not happened before. Ladies were introduced to the barristers' seat, and white kid gloves were presented in due form.

A steam propelled yacht, built for the Sultan of Turkey, recently went upon a trial trip on the Thames, and made more than 20 miles an hour.

THE ROTHSCHILDS.--The following announcement appeared in the English papers a short time ago: "Baron Gustavus Rothschild, of Naples, has retired from business with a fortune, it is said, of £6,000,000 sterling (300,000,000). There are now in Europe but four houses of Rothschilds, in London, Paris, Vienna and Frankfurt." The Neapolitan branch of the great house of Rothschild was the least wealthy and influential of the five branches of it. But assuming that the realized capital of the remaining four, upon which the managers could at any time retire as Baron Gustavus has just done, is four times that of the Neapolitan, it would amount to the enormous sum of $150,000,000! This is the lowest estimate--how much below the truth it is we have no means of ascertaining. Indeed, we doubt if it be exactly known by the fortunate holders themselves. The annual interest on such a sum as this, at six per cent, would be $9,000,000, or $24,657 a day. The wealthiest nobleman in England is the Marquis of Westminster, whose daily income has been estimated at $5,000, which is one-fifth less than that of the individual members of the house of Rothschild. This famous banking firm is one of the great powers of Europe.

UNLOOKED FOR PUNISHMENT.--Years ago one Lewis Holt kept a railroad refreshment stand at the station at Attica, on the road running west. He had a way which men of his persuasion have not altogether abandoned, of taking the money of passengers, sweeping it into his drawer, and fumbling after the change till the cars were off, when the passenger would have to run and leave his money. Charlie Dean stepped out of the cars there one day, took a "ginger pop," price six cents, and laid down a quarter, which Holt dropped into his till, and went hunting to get out the change; but he had time to read the name of Lewis Holt over the door, and, making a note of it, rode on.

Postage was high in those days, and was not required in advance. From Buffalo he wrote a letter to Holt--"Sell foam at twenty five cents a glass, will you?" Holt paid ten cents on this letter, and ten more on another from St. Louis, and for two or three years he kept getting letters from his unknown customer, and would have got more to this day, but for the law requiring postage to be paid in advance. He had to pay two or three dollars in postage before the letters ceased to come, and as they were always directed in a new hand-writing, he hoped each one was of more importance than the ones before.

THE GONDOLAS OF VENICE.--The famed gondola, which so many poets have sung, is perhaps the most delightful conveyance that ever was invented. The quiet, progressive movement, the wonderful address with which the boatmen conduct their charge through the narrow canals, amidst crowds of barges, boats, &c., which are constantly obstructing your route; the nicety with which they measure distances in the most intricate situations, turning sharp corners, and paddling through apertures which you think impracticable, without ever touching the objects that seemed to oppose your passage, give you the most agreeable sensations of pleasure and security. The price of a gondola with two men is only 4s. a day; they are not indeed now dressed in the picturesque garb of former days, but the ordinary attire is well compensated by their utility, which, in the present days of Venetian fortunes, is more important. These men also act as servants in your house.

As a polite agent was going through the ladies' car, checking baggage, he asked a pretty young lady if she had any baggage she wished taken to the hotel.

"No, sir," was the reply.

The agent then asked her if she desired a "buss."

"No, sir," she instantly gave him a very sweet smile, and replied:

"No, sir, I am not in a bussing humor this evening."

The agent dropped his memorandum book, hastily retired to the baggage car and said he felt unwell.

THE PAINTER.--A man of many professions; like the lawyer, he feels the advantage of a good case; like the doctor, from his practice in his gain; like the parson, he zealously seeks for errors, and corrects them; like the poet, he dwells amid types; like the military chieftain, he marshals his thousands; a map of great craft--and no wonder, when the devil helps him.

MADAME PAULINE, a court milliner in London, was recently discharged in bankruptcy, having failed for about twenty-five thousand dollars. She had two partners in business, Signor Tamborini, the great singer, and Signor Piletta, a music teacher, who were sufferers to the extent of fifteen thousand dollars.

A TENDER EPISTLE.--Love is no dream, as the following billet doux picked up in front of the Chicago post-office will show.

MY DEAR SWEET DICEY: I am so happy to hear from you so often, it affords me such great pleasure. You always so dear to me, hope you will soon be dearer.

You know that I never hinted nothing about marriage and never mean to--take your own time for that. I shall always remember the old saying, procreation is the thief of time, but mother says nothing should be done in a hurry, except kitchen flies.

The fondest wish of my heart is that we may soon become one. Did you read Franklin's extract--his remarks concerning it is delightful. Our hearts are ought to assemble one in another in every respect they ought to be heterogeneous so that our union may be mixed as well as uniting--not like oil and water, but like tea and sugar. Truly I can feel for the mortal when he sez--

The rows is red the viles blew, Sugar's sweet and so are you.

Mother says matrimony is better to think on than the reality.

I remain till death or marriage, your own candy.

MARY ANN.
P. S. I hope you will let me know what you mean to do as there is four or five fellows after me hot foot, and I shall be quite uneasy till I hear. Your loving sweet.

MARY ANN.
N. B. I had a cousin married last month who sez there ain't no true enjoyment but in the married state.

SPEECH OF A NERO SOLDIER.--A letter from Port Hudson is published in the Times, which gives a description of how Christmas was kept at that place, and the following speech of a non commissioned officer of the Corps d'Afrique, at a meeting held to afford the soldiers of the 7th Regiment of that organization opportunity to express their feelings on the occurrence of their first free Christmas. He said:

"Fellow Soldiers of de Seventh Regiment: I is mighty glad to enjoy dis opportunity for enjoying dis fust free Christmas in dis world what we live. A year ago, where was we? We was down in de dark land of slavery. And now where are we? We are free men and soldiers of the United States. And what have we to do? We have to fight de rebels, so dat we neber more be slaves. When de day of battle come, what will we do? I speak for me, and I say for myself, I go and fight de rebel till de last man die. Yes, under de flags what was presented to us from New York, we fight till de last man die; and if I be de last man, what will I do? I hold up de flags, and if I die, den I wind dem round me and make dem my shroud, and I go to my grave consided for doing my duty. De President of de United States is one great man, what has done more good dan any oder man what ever was borned. I bless de Lord we fight for so good commander. I have no more to say now and evermore. Amen."

Our acquaintance W had, a few years since, a female ancestor on the maternal side, who, although residing in the vicinity of Mobile for a lifetime, had never yet been there. After repeated solicitations, however, she was induced to pay them a visit. Her grandson, young W, then a boy of fifteen, but who already exhibited that peculiar facility for perpetrating "practical jokes" which characterizes him yet, persuaded the cook to place a large dish of boiled crabs before the old lady, well knowing that she had never before set her eyes on one. Upon seating herself at the table, the usual dish attracted her attention. Carefully drawing her spectacles from their case, she adjusted them firmly on her nose, and took a long stare at the singular looking "edibles;" at last, seizing a fork, she made a desperate thrust at one of them, exclaiming with a long breath, "Heavens and yearh, who ever seen sich spiders before!"

At a recent temperance meeting in Scotland, a convert got up to speak. "My friends," said he, "three months ago I signed the pledge. [Cheers.] In a month afterward, my friend, I had a sovereign in my pocket, a thing I never had before. [Loud cheer.] In another month, my friends, I had a good coat on my back, a thing I never had before. [Cheers much louder.] A fortnight after that, my friends, I bought a coffin, because I felt pretty certain that if I kept the pledge another fortnight I should want one. [No cheers.]

A young woman, named Susan White, who was cleaning a lens in the Royal Observatory, at Middlebury, Ct. having been caught by her hair in a clock mechanism, a hundred times a minute, but was rescued alive, minus all her hair and part of her scalp.

FOR SUPERVISOR.—The election for Supervisor of the Third District will be held on Wednesday next, J. W. Snowball, of Knight's Landing, and S. N.
Mering, of Cache Creek, being the candi-

THE Independent complains of the proceeding of certain individuals of Red Bluff in annoying the District Attorney of that county by a charivari, etc., on account of his action in enforcing the Sunday law at that place.

We have received from the publishers, C. H. Allen and R. E. Wood, of Napa, the life and confessions of James Gilbert Jenkins, the murderer of eight-teen men, and who was executed at Napa on the 18th inst. for the murder of Patrick O'Brien.

HORRIBLE MURDER.—Thomas Mondly, a blacksmith, working at Callahan's Ranch, Yuba county, was found murdered near his cabin on Saturday, mutilated in a horrible manner—being chopped with an axe in the back, breast, and aldomen, and his bowels protruding.

THE funeral of Hossefross, at San Francisco, was attended by the Society of Pioneers, the entire Fire Department, and a great number of citizens. The procession was over one mile in extent.
The City Hall bell and fire bells throughout the city were tolled during the obse-quies.

LAWYERS.—It should be borne in mind by attorneys throughout the State that the new rules adopted by the present Supreme Court have gone into effect, and that all transcripts and briefs or arguments filed in civil cases shall be printed.
The party filing the document may at his option print the same or transmit to the Clerk of the Court in manuscript to be printed under the direction of that officer.

THE Social Party on Thursday night was a very pleasant affair, there being just enough present to make it comfortable, and not enough to crowd. All expressed themselves highly pleased, both with the party and the collation served by Mr. Dyer. Oh, the aroma of that coffee seems to float around our dreamy, half-asleep imagination yet, and through it a little form goes waltzing round and round. Mr. French will give another party on the 14th of next month.

THE Sacramento Union entered upon its twenty-seventh volume March 19th, and the fourteenth year of its existence as a newspaper. The news facilities it enjoys, its large and diversified correspondence, and other prominent features, have given it a position and influence second to no journal in the State, and particularly desired by the people. May it continue to prosper and improve as it grows older, and its owners live long to enjoy its fruits.

ment for plaintiff for $1,331 22, and for o'clock.

RUNAWAY.—Yesterday morning Robert Gardner, of Yolo co., and Gardiner H. Cushing started out from the Pacific Stables, on Second street, for a buggy ride. As they reached K street the neck-yoke slipped over the key or pin at the end of the tongue, depriving the horses of the power of holding back the buggy. The vehicle of course ran on the heels of the horses and both began to kick violently. The more the horses were checked by the driver the more closely the buggy ran upon their heels.
The men both jumped out, landing without any serious injury. The horses continued to run, and turning into Front street passed by the station house at a furious rate. On reaching an open space near the bridge they dashed down a precipice into the bed of the slough on the right hand side of the street. Horses and buggy were piled together promiscuously, but were finally segregated and extricated by the crowd of men who followed them. The buggy was considerably injured, but the horses sustained little or no damage.—Union of 24th.

THE following preamble and resolutions were adopted by the Vaccaville Valley Baptist Church, in conference Nov.
19, 1864:

Whereas, Elder J. E. Barnes has served us faithfully during the past year as an Evangelist, being punctual at all of his appointments, and fulfilled the duties thereof as laid down in the Word of God, giving, as we believe, satisfaction to all who have attended on his ministry—Therefore,

Resolved, That we herein express to Bro. Barnes our high appreciation of his labors with us, and assure him that our prayers, sympathies, and well-wishes shall be with him in all trials and temptations through which he may be called to pass.

Resolved, That we extend a call for him to labor with us another year as our Evangelist, and that a correspondence be opened with the Grafton Baptist Church to that end. DANIEL KING, Mod'r.
T. S. BAYLEY, Clerk.

the County Courts for fines. Of this, $1,000 was paid to-day by Orabtree, who was convicted on Thursday, another defaulting or absent juror.

ANTICIPATORY EFFECT OF THE GOLD

BILL UPON THE GOLD MARKET.—The N. Y. World of 22d February, remarks: The gold market is disturbed by the expectation that Mr. Chase will sell a large amount of gold coin in order to bring down the price. Foreign bankers and importers who want the gold for shipment to Europe, and some of Mr.

Chase's confidential stock-jobbing friends in Washington, Philadelphia, and New York, who have sold gold largely, short, are all anxiously waiting to buy gold at lower prices. Mr. Chase's anticipated stock jobbing raid on the price of gold will benefit these foreigners and stock jobbers much. If Mr. Chase will reduce the price of gold by some legitimate means, such as the contraction of the paper money issues by exchanging greenbacks for the cotton of rebels, then all prices would decline naturally in the same ratio as gold, and the twenty millions of loyal citizens would be benefited thereby. But an exceptional sale of gold may bring down its price without bringing down prices generally, and in this case the only parties benefitted are the buyers, and the only losers are the sellers of the gold. The only buyers of gold are foreigners, and the only sellers or producers are American citizens. Gold is the product of the State of California, just as hogs are the product of Mr. Chase's State of Ohio, or grain is the product of Illinois. California produces about $60,- 000,000 per annum in gold, and that State is just as anxious to obtain in New York the highest possible price for its gold product as Ohio is for its hogs, and Illinois for its grains. By what constitutional right, or upon what principle of equity or common sense does Government ask Congress to pass laws which shall run down the price in the United States of the gold products of California? Are the hogs of Ohio or the grain of Illinois more precious in the eyes of our honorable Secretary than the produce of California?— Is the citizen in California not entitled to the same freedom and exemption from legislative encroachments against the sale of the products of his labor—gold—as the citizens of all the other States? If we assume $60,000,000 in gold as the annual production in California, then its value in New York for greenbacks, with gold at 160, is $96,000,000; and will Mr. Chase and Congress please to inform California where they obtain the right to pass a special law which shall depreciate their State product perhaps 20 or 30 per cent., thereby robbing California of $12,000,- 000 to $18,000,000 for the especial benefit and emolument of foreigners, chiefly British, who are the only buyers of gold for actual use? If Mr. Chase's confidential friends have been foolish enough to sell gold short, let them present their petitions to Congress in forma pauperie, and let them obtain from our honorable Secretary a letter stating that in his judgment, it is essential to the putting down of the rebellion that the stockjobbing losses of his friends shall be paid out of the public purse, and Congress then will have a more perfect understanding of what these gold bills mean. These gold bills are simply bills for the benefit of foreigners and Mr. Chase's stock-jobbing friends.

THE DEPRESSION IN MINING STOCKS.
What is the occasion of the depression in mining stocks? The mining fever raged most extensively during the latter part of last summer. Washoe, Humboldt, and Esmeralda had experienced their day.— Reese River sprang next, full fledged, into being. Burnt specimens of its ore, dazzling the eye with innumerable globules of silver, were exhibited everywhere, and created a vast sensation.— Men in moderate pecuniary circumstances rushed into the market and purchased "feet," fearful that they would be too late if they tarried. They invested wildly, without knowing whether it was a boulder or a mine they were buying into.
Many of those who sold were themselves deceived. They thought they had a ledge when it was only a spur. In some instances where they had a mine, their anxiety to get to San Francisco to incorporate and sell caused them to forget the local laws under which they claimed ownership. The consequence was, their mine, in their absence, was jumped. The purchaser, in such cases, would of course be swindled. So he would be when the spur pinched out. Buying into too many mines, his assessments involved him; and thus, the middling classes, or men of moderate means, were shorn to enrich the capitalists, who now have the money, and take good care to hold it.—

MISS HARDINGE'S NEW SIGN.—Poor Miss Hardinge is driven out of Platt's big Hall by an opposition sensation preacher. But she makes up for the loss by investing in a huge transparency, extending half-way over the side walk. At present it is simply a business sign, with the name of the shop on it in black letters, but we understand that if business grows dull, she intends to have a beautiful representation of the spirit world, with a correct likeness of John Brown's soul in full marching order, painted by a distinguished colored artist, in colors, while under the influence of spirits—in fact, suffering from a severe attack of delirium tremens. Poor Miss Hardinge, people thought she had too good a thing.
Another opposition has started; Mrs.
Lizzie Williams is going in for her share of the profits by lecturing on "Woman as a Prophetess." Go in, all of you, Kit-teridge, Lizzie—as many as please; try your best, and "the Hardinge" is smart enough to beat you all.—News Letter.

SQUALLY APPEARANCE.—BREAKERS

AHEAD!—Notwithstanding "the backbone of the rebellion is broken," affairs look blue for Uncle Samuel. Every military movement of ours, since the opening of the year, has been a failure, whilst every rebel one has been a success. The siege of Charleston is virtually abandoned. Two attempts upon Richmond proved abortive. In Florida we got most dreadfully whipped. The great Texas expedition turned out a fizzle; and the grand combined and extended strategic scheme to drive Johnson back upon Atlanta, Longstreet out of Tennessee, occupy Alabama and capture Mobile, has ended more disastrously than all the rest combined. Johnson is on the aggressive, driving Thomas back into Chattanooga. Longstreet, with a large army, still occupies his strong and threatening position in East Tennessee. Lee, with a constantly increasing army, defies General Meade, and threatens another movement Northward. Pickett is making aggressive demonstrations along the whole front of his department in North Carolina and Southern Virginia. The guerrillas upon the Mississippi, in West Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia, and other places, are exhibiting renewed activity and boldness. At the same time Father Abraham, at the urgent recommendation of Lieut. Gen. Grant, is calling upon his children for a few more hundred thousand troops to save the North from being overrun and conquered by the sons of Belial from the South.

Whilst all these internal disasters and threatening dangers are crowding upon us, our foreign relations again look ominous. Mason, Slidell, and Gwin have doubtless had the ear of Napoleon to some effect. An early change in the English Ministry (which seems inevitable) will bring upon the tapis—Lord Derby and a joint recognition. The whole plan has already been arranged in Paris. Maximilian is now there, and will soon wave his imperial sceptre over Mexico. The Fenian brotherhood will act as France shall indicate. A Celtic Nation upon the American continent is included among the grand ideas of the programme. Finally the great greenback issue collapses—the shoddy contractors run for their 25 cents—175 cents being paid for gold where loyalty ceases—the armies disband, and then the greatest—(at this moment the wires gave out, our communication being completely "Omahawed," vide Alta).—S. F. News Letter.

THE Governor's veto of the bill to tax Sacramento county for the benefit of the State Agricultural Society was sustained by the Senate; but a bill introduced by Heacock, empowering the Sacramento Supervisors to levy a special tax for the relief of the Society was passed. The following are the comments of the Union of Thursday upon the subject:

The veto of the bill to pay this debt by Governor Low appears in our Senate proceedings to day. The reasons assigned by him are good and valid, one of which is similar to that made use of by the Union in opposing the bill while on its passage through the Legislature, viz: that it is neither just nor equitable to compel the people of the city and county of Sacramento, while they are burdened with so large an indebtedness of their own, to assume and pay a debt for which they are in no manner bound—Campbell to the contrary notwithstanding. The veto was unanimously sustained, but the creditors of the Society are too importu-nate and exacting to let the matter remain dead. Accordingly Senator Heacock has introduced "an Act for the relief of the State Agricultural Society," which makes the levying of the tax discretionary with the Supervisors, and fixes the rate in the city at ten cents and in the county at fifteen cents. The bill was put through its several readings and passed the Senate. If the bill passes the Assembly and becomes a law, the Supervisors will misrepresent their constituents grossly if they ever levy such a tax as the one under consideration.

THE Mountain Messenger is to be removed from La Porte, Sierra county, to Downsville, the county seat, to take the place of the Democrat, recently destroyed by fire in the latter place.

Eastern News.

The following are from the latest dispatches to the Sacramento Union:

No fighting of consequence is reported from any quarter. It is reported that Lee is receiving reinforcements of infantry from various quarters and reorganizing his cavalry. Gen. Grant will review the entire army of the Potomac to-morrow. That army will not be reorganized.

The fleet in front of Mobile is to be reinforced by the Brooklyn, the double turreted Onondaga, the Canonicus, and Sassafras; the last named is one of the swiftest vessels in the navy.

Illinois has raised 12,000 troops in excess of all calls. The other States are behind. In the aggregate, about 270,000. Pennsylvania has still 74,000 soldiers to furnish by volunteering or by draft.

Beauregard has left Charleston for the Southwest, and D. H. Hill has taken command of the remains of the Palmetto City. Beauregard has probably gone to look after the defenses of Mobile, which Admiral Farragut threatens.

European advices to the 10th have been received. The Austrians continued to advance into Jutland, but are reported to have suffered a severe check north of Fredrica.

British Ministers vigorously denounce the course of the Gorman Confederates, but do not promise to intervene in behalf of Denmark.

EXCITING SCENE AT A WEDDING.—Lieutenant J. G. Dodge, of St. Louis, was married at Jefferson city, Mo., on the 15th inst., to Miss Sarah Brown, daughter of Gen. E. B. Brown, commander of the district of Central Missouri. A correspondent of the St. Louis Union writes: "A bridal party, consisting of the bride, bridegroom, bridesmaids, and their escorts, had just made their entry into the dressing room of the Governor's mansion from Gen. Brown's residence, when the gauze dress and veil of the bride caught fire by coming in contact with a red-hot stove, and in an instant she was enveloped in a sheet of flame. Lieutenant Dodge, with great presence of mind, flung his overcoat over her person, and immediately squelched the flames. The only result of this mishap was a delay of an hour, and the necessity of procuring a new dress to replace the one destroyed."

The London Times of January 29th admonishes the Naval Powers of the world that England is now building an armoured ship that will be "as terrible as an assault on ironclads as an ironclad would be to wooden ships." Our contemporary, at a loss for a word that will convey a proper idea of the nature of the new fearful engine of war, calls it a "monster." The object, we are told, is, with which this vessel is designed, is, in case of another great naval war, to avoid repetition of the long dreary work of blockading an enemy's fleet by wearisome and dangerous cruising off the mouth of harbors. The Bellerophon (the monster's name), is, in short, to a fleet of ironclads what a fast carrier is to a pack of hounds. In case of an enemy's fleet running into port, she can follow them with impunity.

Mason & Hamlin's CABINET ORGANS.

CONGRATULATE you on the introduction of a new musical instrument, long wanted, and sure to find its way into every household of taste and refinement.

As compared with melodeons, harmoniums, &c., the Cabinet Organ is certainly superior in quality and volume of tone, while its power of expression can hardly be too highly praised.

BEST of their class of which we have any knowledge.

More than 200 Eminent Organists.

Every respect far superior to anything of the kind I have ever seen, whether in Europe or America.

Next to a church organ, and that a good sized one, the best instrument with which we are acquainted to accompany church song.

EXCEEDS in my estimation every other instrument of this general class.

THE favorable testimony of nearly every organist or pianist of note in this country, together with that of certain distinguished foreign authorities, has forestalled our appreciative comments upon the excellence and value of these carefully made instruments.

ONCE bearing them will satisfy the most skeptical that they are just what the church has been waiting for.

REALLY very effective and beautiful instruments.

GRAND accompanying when the congregation is large.

VERY efficient church organ, brought within a small compass; not easy to get out of order, and sold at a low price.

NEVER seen anything of the kind which interested me so much.

SURPASSES anything in this line I have seen, whether French or American.

Knight's Landing News.

There is a German family at Galena, who, in daily conversation, use the English language, but the mother teaches her children the same German prayers she used to repeat in her childhood, away back on the Rhine. One night, as little Ernest, a precocious chap, of four summers, was quietly going through his evening devotions, he suddenly electrified and astonished his pious mother, by exclaiming: "Ma, why do we always talk Yankee, and pray German? Is God a Dutchman?"

A PORTLAND, Me., paper says there is a ship belonging to that State, now at sea, forty three years old, whose first owner, first master, and first consignee, are now living.

Two German women; about sailing from Liverpool for New York, were detected with fourteen boxes of cigars beneath their crinoline, endeavoring to evade the excise.

Mr. MERRY's celebrated horse Buckstone has been sold in England for four thousand five hundred pounds sterling, ($22,000) to go to China.
